

Service fingerprinting tools used reveal remote machines' service software/versions. Thanks to the application -that is currently in development-, the signature extraction applications will give incorrect results about provided services.

Currently; a prototype of the application, removing the signature of the domain name server, is developed.